Any motion must be filed with the office which originally decided your case along with a fee of $110 as required under 8 C.F.R. 103.7.

FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Mary C. Mulrean, Acting Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the District Director, Miami, Florida, who certified his decision to the Associate Commissioner, Examinations, for review. The district director's decision will be affirmed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Venezuela who filed this application for adjustment of status to that of a lawful permanent resident under section 1 of the Cuban Adjustment Act of November 2, 1966. This Act provides, in part:

> [T]he status of any alien who is a native or citizen of Cuba and who has been inspected and admitted or paroled into the United States subsequent to January 1, 1959 and has been physically present in the United States for at least one year, may be adjusted by the Attorney General, in his discretion and under such regulations as he may prescribe, to that of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence if the alien makes an application for such adjustment, and the alien is eligible to receive an immigrant visa and is admissible to the United States for permanent residence. The provisions of this Act shall be applicable to the spouse and child of any alien described in this subsection, regardless of their citizenship and place of birth, who are residing with such alien in the United States.

The district director determined that the applicant was not eligible for adjustment of status as the stepchild of a native or citizen of Cuba pursuant to section 1 of the Act of November 2, 1966, because his stepfather did not adjust his status under this Act. The district director, therefore, denied the application.

The applicant has provided no statement or additional evidence on notice of certification.

The record reflects that on July 23, 1991, the status of the applicant's stepfather [redacted] was adjusted to that of a refugee (RE-6). On September 16, 1995 at Miami, Florida, the applicant's mother married [redacted] a native and citizen of Cuba.

The statute clearly states that the provisions of section 1 of the Cuban Adjustment Act shall be applicable to the spouse and child of any alien described in this subsection. In order that the applicant may be eligible for the benefits of section 1 of the Act of November 2, 1966, he or she must be the child of a native or citizen of Cuba who has been inspected and admitted or paroled into the United States, has made an application for such adjustment under section 1 of the Act, is eligible to receive an immigrant visa, and is admissible to the United States for permanent residence. See Matter of Milian, 13 I&N Dec. 480 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1970). See also Section 2 of the Act of November 2, 1966;

[redacted]

Matter of Benguria Y Rodriguez, 12 I&N Dec. 143 (Reg. Comm. 1967). In this case, the applicant's stepfather did not adjust his status under section 1 of the Cuban Adjustment Act. Rather, his status was adjusted to that of a refugee pursuant to section 207 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1157. Therefore, the benefits of section 1 are not available to the applicant.

It is also noted for the record that the applicant is over 21 years of age and is, therefore, not a "child" as defined in section 101(b)(1) of the Act.

Accordingly, the applicant is ineligible for adjustment of status to permanent resident pursuant to section 1 of the Act of November 2, 1966. The decision of the district director to deny the application will be affirmed.

This decision is without prejudice to the filing of a Relative Immigrant Visa Petition (Form I-130) by the applicant's stepfather on behalf of the applicant.

ORDER: The district director's decision is affirmed.
